D.LIGHT DESIGN SELECTED AS GLOBAL CLEANTECH 100 WINNER
Award Recognizes Most Promising Private CleanTech Companies in the World

New Delhi, India, 10 September 2009 – D.light Design today announced their selection as a winner of the prestigious Global CleanTech 100, which recognizes the most promising commercial clean technology enterprises on the planet. The 100 represents the collective wisdom of the experts reached by internationally recognized The Cleantech Group and leading publication the Guardian.

“D.light is honored to be recognized by these renowned and trailblazing leaders of the clean technology movement,” said D.light CEO Sam Goldman. “This award affirms our commitment to and effectiveness in meeting the energy needs of the developing world through innovative solar technology.”

The Global CleanTech initiative was motivated to help draw more attention to the world of innovation and investment, to strike an optimistic note in public consciousness that we can face up to the challenges of our times, and to give the spotlight to the people out there making significant advances, growing new businesses and new industries, and creating jobs.

The Global CleanTech 100 is featured in the Guardian and in upcoming CleanTech Forums in the US, India, UK, and China. Visit www.cleantech.com for more information.
